

February 2019: Update from the e-Learning Ambassador

I am thrilled to contact you again so soon after my previous letter in December 2018. The ECCO Congress in Copenhagen in March is just around the corner and preparations are in their final stages. There is, therefore, no better time to highlight the latest developments in ECCO's e-Learning platform.

First and foremost, I am very excited to announce that the new and improved ECCO e-Library will be launched at ECCO'19 in Copenhagen. This enhanced version will be even more user-friendly, giving you refined search functions, such as free text searching of ECCO congress abstracts, as well as the choice of an extensive menu of categories and keywords based on the IBD Curriculum. In addition there is a more intuitive page layout, and I am sure that you will find that searching through ECCO's vast library of scientific material has never been easier and quicker.

I would also like to introduce you to the newest component of ECCO e-Learning – Skills Videos. The aim of the "Skills videos" is to offer education in various fields of IBD by providing practical tips and suggestions. Each one of these video clips will deal with one specific subject; make sure you take the opportunity to check out the brand new Skills Videos listed below!

- Endoscopy assessment and management of strictures
- Surveillance Colonoscopy on IBD
- Endoscopy characterisation of dysplastic lesions in IBD
- Endoscopic scoring systems in Crohn's disease

The ECCO Congress is always a very busy time when it comes to the development and production of e-Learning material. In addition to the four new skills videos, four new Educational Audio Podcasts and five new Talking Heads will be recorded at the Congress in Copenhagen. A brand new e-Course on interventional endoscopy is also in production. All of the aforementioned e-Learning items will be made available in the coming months following the Congress.

Keep your eyes open for fresh and exciting e-Learning material coming soon and please feel free to stop me for a chat at the Congress if you have any ideas or comments!

ECCO e-Learning Ambassador,

Peter Irving
