

December 2016: Update from the e-Learning Ambassador

I am delighted to contact you again so soon after my previous letter in October 2016. In the past two months the e-CCO Learning Platform has been enriched with multiple additions to ECCO's interactive IBD e-learning portfolio.

Two new e-Courses have just been launched – Extra-intestinal Manifestations and Surgery in Crohn's Disease. They are based on the latest ECCO Guidelines and, as all ECCO e-Courses, provide narratives of a patient's journey based on real cases. They also provide an opportunity to assess your knowledge with multiple choice questions.

Additionally, two new videos were added to the IBD Blue Book series. The IBD Blue Book covers the basic aspects of the etiology, diagnosis and management of IBD and now contains a case-based chapter on Managing IBD emergencies and a comprehensive chapter on Imaging modalities in IBD.

Furthermore, our Talking Heads, the exciting series where opinion leaders in the field of IBD debate current controversial topics, has four new videos. You can now watch ECCO experts discuss the nuances of cancer risk in IBD patients and stopping biologic therapy. The former ties in with our recently published e-Course on Malignancies. The Nurses of ECCO have also prepared a two-part comprehensive discussion of [stoma & pouch \[part 1, part 2\]](#). The Talking Heads remain open access and are thus available to all.

Our e-Library already contains all the abstracts and webcasts from ECCO educational courses as well as plenary presentations from the ECCO Congresses. Now it has been expanded and features Y-ECCO Literature reviews of current IBD literature.

Soon, all this content will be aligned to the new ECCO IBD Curriculum – a concise yet complete curriculum, outlining everything that gastroenterologists need to know to develop expertise in the field of IBD. Don't miss out on this and other new developments and come visit the e-CCO Learning Platform.

ECCO e-Learning Ambassador,

James Lindsay
